

Conjunctions

Conjunctions form a link between one word and another. They are words that join together parts of sentences.

The three most common co-ordinate conjunctions are :
and or but

His best sports are golf and tennis.

Jill does not like tea or coffee.

I like fruit, but I don't like oranges.

common co-ordinate conjunctions

and but for nor or so yet

Subordinate Conjunctions

Subordinate conjunctions join parts of a sentence.

I want to be a pilot when I grow up.

Jan is going to her grandmother's place after school.

Tom has been learning karate since he was five years old.

The most common subordinate conjunctions

after	although	though	whenever before	once	unless	where happily	since	until	wherever neatly	than	when	while